5. NOTICE

To All Major U.S. Units:

The enemy knows that preparations are being made for the invasion of the Continent. He is straining every nerve and concentrating all his resources to obtain accurate information upon which to base his defensive strategy. Our success in this vital operation depends upon denying him this information.

Each individual taking part in the preparations for this operation bears a heavy responsibility. The rules of security are known to us all - a guarded tongue and safe-guarded documents. It rests with each one of us to ensure that there is no relaxation of these rules until success is achieved.

All Commanders will ensure that the highest standard of individual security discipline and instruction is maintained throughout their commands, and that most stringent disciplinary action is taken in all cases of the violation of security.
